REPUBLICANS OPEN UP CAMPAIGN IN CITY

Enthusiasm Shown in Meeting of State Committee at Pittsburg

PLATFORM IS ADOPTED

Ringier Declaration of Principles Made--Ship Canal
is Favored

Characterized by enthusiasm the Republican state campaign was opened in Pittsburg Wednesday evening at a meeting of the state committee by the adoption of a ringing declaration of principles, the platform, and by striking keynote speeches by state candidates.

Every speaker was given the most hearty applause. They were Senator Boise Penrose, candidate for senator; Martin E. Brumtaugh, candidate for governor; Frank B. McClain, candidate for lieutenant governor; Henry Houck, candidate for secretary of internal affairs; and State Chairman William E. Crow. State Chairman Crow presided.

The platform as adopted arraigns the Democratic party for its policies which have brought trouble to the land and calls upon Republicans to rally to the support of the candidates for their party. As John R. Halsey of Wilkes-Barre, chairman of the committee on resolutions, read the difficult planks in the platform the principles enunciated were enthusiastically applauded.

The plank of good roads pledged the party's support not only for the construction for main improved trunk roads but for the construction of more and better dirt roads. Continued liberal support of the public schools was pledged, and the spread of agricultural education was commended. The policy of taking over the state historic places and buildings was approved and the development of forestry was urged.

Of especial interest to Western Pennsylvania is the plank on the Lake Erie and Ohio River Ship Canal. It recites that the completion of the Panama Canal renders advisable the early construction of the Lake Erie Canal, which would make Pittsburg practically a lake port. National and state aid for the project is urged.

The canal plank was also conspicuous because of its mention of the necessity of improvement of the Monongahela, Ohio, and Allegheny rivers and tributaries.

The platform approves the mother's pension law, urges federal pensions for soldiers and sailors who have fought in wars and are more than 62 years old and suggests the passage of a law giving pensions to the emergency volunteers. The next Legislature is urged to adopt a resolution to submit to the voters an amendment to the Constitution providing for a woman's suffrage. Equal rights for Jews in Russia are commended, and the state candidates are endorsed.

In their speeches practically all the candidates bitterly arraigned the Democratic party for its failures, and declared warmly for protection.

Mr. Farmer, Do You

Carry a Check Book?

The number of farmers who
do is steadily increasing.

We never knew one to give
up the practice after he had
demonstrated its convenience.

Now, for instance, Mr. A. and
Mr. B., neighboring farmers
have a deal, and in settling up,
cannot make change. They
most necessarily wait until one
makes a trip to town, or they
may find a neighbor who can
help them out, all of which
takes time. With a check
book one may write the exact
amount on a note for a cent more
or less—and the deal is closed.

Of course we supply our cus-

In France, to which we look as the home of the dowry, we have it on the authority of M. Brieux, "La Femme Seule," that "there are about 2,500, 000 single women in France today,"
and that many of these do not marry,
—because they have no "dot."
The daughter of workmen who are too
well educated to marry a workman and the workman does not want to marry them, because the girls are too poor.

"At the same time the system of the 'dot' obtains in France where the parents put by a certain sum every week for a girl's dowry when she grows up. The fate of the dowryless girl in France is much worse, from the marital point of view, than that of her similarly undowered sister in England, where marriages would indeed be few and far between in any class were a dowry an indispensable
adjunct to 'tying the knot.'"

In Germany there is the Stifte (charitable institution), described by Mrs.
Alfred Sidwick. "There are Stifte
from which a woman may absent herself for the greater part of the year,
and yet draw an income from its funds and have a room or rooms appointed to her use; there are others where residence is compulsory. Some are open only to descendants of the founders; some will sell vacancies.

"A woman may have to wait year after year for a chance of getting in,
or she may belong to one that will admit her at a certain age.
Some are just sets of rooms with certain privileges of light and firing attached. But you cannot be much among the Germans without seeing women who have been educated, endowed, helped in distress or supported in old age by one of these organizations.

"In Greece it is considered wrong
for brothers to marry until their sisters have been wed. Again girls must marry in order of seniority. It would not be right for a girl to be married while she had an elder sister who remained single. The men of a family are thus naturally anxious to see their sisters settled, and as a dowry is indispensable, its provision is often a matter of serious anxiety and the fruit of great self-denial on the part of the brothers if the parents are dead.

"There are cases in which brothers have remained unmarried and devoted all their hard earned savings to the dowries of their sisters. Among the poorer classes emigration is resorted to, not infrequently solely with this object, and many a dowry comes to a Greek maiden from across the Atlantic.

"The average young woman living in luxury in her father's house," says
a famous novelist, "is between the devil and the deep sea," on account of the English system of—in the case—
giving the money on the eldest son.

There is a happy medium, and though it takes a good deal to remove hidebound prejudice and custom, once the Englishman is convinced of the justice of a plea, he is rarely deaf to it, and "money is a greater necessity to the woman than to the man, because any man who is a real man can work, but many a woman brought up in sheltered idleness can't work; that is, can't work to gain an income and independence, and so, sooner or later, without money or without courage, she sinks submerged."

Cause of Malaria.

The discovery that malaria is not due to miasma or to poisonous air of any sort, but is transmitted from one person to another by a mosquito of the Anopheles variety, was made by Maj. Ronald Ross, a surgeon of the British army, formerly in the India service and now connected with the Liverpool School of Tropical Medicine. He had been a careful student of the problem for several years when in a series of experiments in 1898 he succeeded in infecting birds with malaria from the bites of mosquitoes.
Later in the same year and in 1899
three Italian physicians, A. Bignami, G. Bastianelli and B. Grassi, applying the methods of Ross, succeeded in infecting human beings. Major Ross and the same physicians had proved,
in previous experiments, that men
could not be infected with malaria
with air or water brought from ma-lari-ous localities.—Joseph Buckin
Bishop in Scribner's Magazine.

What Kills Them.

Mr. Bacon—It is said that American railroads kill an average of 32 persons daily.

Mrs. Bacon—Well, when we consider the foul air in those smoking cars,
I should think the average would be higher than that even.

TOO LIBERAL WITH ADVICE

Bank Cashier Meant Well, but Experience Taught Him a Lesson
and Lasting Lesson.

The story sifted down from St. Paul the other day that "Jim" Hill engaged a shakeup in a bank there because he found an ink spot on his monthly statement, which recalled to a bank official of this town the reason why one cashier ceased to be a little ray of sunshine. Persons who can coax more than a conversational bit out of him nowadays are indeed skilled. "He was a conservative guy
—and good," said the banker. "He was the sort of a man who would have a light turned on in the hall
at night so that burglars might think that some member of the family had not returned home. He was especially strong on temperance. Strong drink had never seared his pure lips.
He cashiered in a savings bank in the edge of the town. One day a Hunkey blew in with an active hang-over. If he had any more liquor in him he wouldn't have been legal without a revenue stamp. He said he wanted the $50 he had on deposit. The cashier stepped to the rear limits of his cage and refused to pay until he came around sober. 'Your signature,'
said the cashier, 'looks like a dog-bite when you're in this condition. I will not accept it.' So the Hunkey went hooting up and down town announcing that the savings bank had refused to pay his money. By alarm-clock time next morning the streets were full of rambling Hunkeys, waving bank books. The reserves were called out and the depositors were chased away. Then the bank officials investigated and the cashier confessed. He stopped giving good advice."—New York Globe.

The Inspector's Disguise.
Some days ago, about five o'clock
in the afternoon the principal police inspector of the Second district was called to an affair as delicate as it was urgent.

He quickly made up his disguise.
For his bergerous melon hat, he substituted a cap, the classic cap of the Apache. He then jumped in his auto

He was not recognizable, or rather
he would not have been if the honorable inspector had not retained upon his breast the red ribbon of the legion of honor, a ribbon that he had heroically won at Sals-le-Roi, under tragic circumstances that no one has forgotten.

And the malefactors in the midst of whom this disguised officer insinuated
himself could not refrain from laughing and are laughing yet at this man clothed like one of them and decorated with the legion of honor!—Le Cri
de Paris.

Evil of Cossips.
Every man and woman will be entitled to think better of themselves and will have a stronger claim to the regard of others, if they cease to be on the lookout for something to find fault with, to treasure up and repeat,
and magnify every scandal, little and big, and to retail and spread every small heap of tea table gossip, which carries with it ridicule or censure for some one. Suppose all that were dropped, and really it is unworthy of intelligent well meaning people, and the habit formed of only speaking well of others. Would it, after all, be as stupid as some seem to think?—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Mr. Farmer, Do You
Carry a Check Book?

The number of farmers who
do is steadily increasing.

We never knew one to give
up the practice after he had
demonstrated its convenience.

Now, for instance, Mr. A. and
Mr. B., neighboring farmers
have a deal, and in settling up,
cannot make change. They
most necessarily wait until one
makes a trip to town, or they
may find a neighbor who can
help them out, all of which
takes time. With a check
book one may write the exact
amount on a note for a cent more
or less—and the deal is closed.

Of course we supply our customers with check books.

Pitfalls and Business Careers

It is always painful to "fall down," either literally or figuratively. Why risk pitfalls in commercial education that is inadequate that may be responsible for disappointment, just when some unusual or unexpected problem in the office would give you a chance to win against rivals?

On such occasions our graduates are particularly proud of the training received at OUR School—and particularly grateful for it.

"Nothing too good for our students," explains their success and ours; also the success of our FREE EMPLOYMENT DEPARTMENT.

A visit will show you WHY. Please bear this in mind the next time you go out.

WORDS THAT REALLY SPEAK

Many Expressions in the Language That Seem to Convey Instantaneous Meaning.

Bang—"a sudden noise like that from a gun" is the definition given by the dictionary. But the explanation is belittling and futile, for a "bang" is—well, what better describes it than the simple word itself?

So many of our most expressive words seem similarly to have sprung from a desire to form with the lips a sound imitating the thing described. Why waste words on a definition of the word "splash," for example? You hear all the abrupt, restless heaving of the waters in that one word.

And does even a baby need to be told what "buzz" means when a blue bottle is leading a forlorn hope against the pantry window?

"Tinkle," "whistle," "whine," "grizzle," "rattle," "rattle," "rattle"—these are only a few of our other eloquently descriptive words.

It is also extremely interesting to note the sharp distinction drawn between the words of opposite meaning so as to emphasize their difference in sound—thus, "brisk, lazy" (or "sluggish"); "hot, icy"; "down, up"; "joy, miserable," and so on.

EXERCISE IN THE FRESH AIR

No Doctor's Prescription So Valuable as This Simple and Pleasant Occupation.

When health is the great desideratum one should not hesitate to make almost any sacrifice to obtain it. This was well illustrated by the man who recently double-crossed the continent in 322 days. At the time of his leaving on this journey afoot he was threatened with consumption. He realized that fresh air, exercise and sunshine formed the perfect trinity that spells health. He started on that long tramp expecting health as the result. Did he get it? Sure. One gets what he expects—not merely what he hopes for; not merely what he desires, but he must expect to get that for which he hopes and desires; then lay hold of the means, as did this man, whereby the object may be obtained and then retained. He is, as the result of his effort, in the "pink of condition." He weighed 104 pounds at the start, 140 pounds at the finish—and placed a good round thousand to his credit. Best of all, he walked away from disease. Go, thou, and do likewise.

Women Multiply Their Trouble.

The popularity of bridge has swept all records so far this season. Any prominent society dame gets an average of, say, one invitation per afternoon. This she could manage beautifully were the invitations for successive dates. But suppose they bunch themselves so that she gets a half dozen for the same afternoon? Society, through necessity, has evolved a novel plan to meet this. It is the substitute. By the operation of this plan, the much-rushed society woman is enabled to enjoy her afternoon of bridge at the house she chooses, secure in the knowledge that she is being represented by her proxies in five other homes. Bridge for bridge's sake has resulted, for the invasion of the proxy has done away with the social aspect to a marked degree. But the proxy player has come to stay, as she is a necessity in the strenuous life of the social swim.

Tragedy in Women's Hats.

There is a tragedy in every woman's hat. It seems almost as cruel to pay girls who make the dainty flowers in France a pittance as to kill the birds of brilliant plumage in Brazil. Thirty cents a day, 20 and 15, with an occasional 75 for rare skill in making roses, deducting for loss of time and slack work, tells the story of wretchedness and woe. Summed up the average is not far from $60 a year on which to support existence. American lovers of French millinery will be amazed at the wages paid young women in France gifted with deft fingers and rare taste, especially when they take the prices charged for Parisian hats into consideration.

Sickness Caused by Wireless.

Wireless operators, particularly on shipboard, are subject to an anemic condition that manifests itself in pallor, loss of appetite and headaches. Blood tests show a diminished number of red corpuscles.

It has been customary to charge this to the poor quarters many of the wireless operators occupy. But it now seems that the presence of too much ozone in the confined air and the presence of electric currents of high frequency exercise a bad effect that as yet is poorly defined.

The same condition has been observed among the electricians at great power stations like that at Niagara.

He Wanted Better Odds.

The first time Bill, the farm hand, ever complained of feeling sick his boss sent him to town with the address of a doctor he knew. Bill came back next day and reported:

"Well, I took my medicine, but not from that doctor you sent me to—no, sirree!"

"Why not? Couldn't you find him?"

"Oh, I found his place, all right, with his name on a brass plate on the door. But underneath the name it said '10 to 1.' I wasn't going to take no such risks as that. There was another doctor next door, and his sign read '5 to 5.' The odds was so much better that I went to him."

CHARLEROI TEAM CAPTURES GAME BY GOOD SCORE

Whitewash Proceeding Gone Through With Belle Vernon as Losers

ONE-SIDED STRUGGLE

BASEBALL

Chief Walter Urban, assistant chief Patrick Swaney and seven other husky ball players including a fair representation of the famed McGinty family from New England, sawed a slice off the hopes of Belle Vernon baseball fans seven feet long Wednesday evening. They brought out a new pair of whitewash and obliterated the Belle Vernon scenery. In the paraphrased words of the noted Caesar, Belle Vernon came, they saw and went away homesick. Score, 7 to 0.

Captain Urban was the chief mogul at almost anything you wish to talk about. He scored two runs, tallied three hits, and pilfered three bases. Father Bill Cratty was second mate of the scoring brig.

It happened something like this. With one down in the first inning, Cratty came to bat. He whaled one at the shortstop and the shortstop whaled it over the first baseman's head, leaving Bill clear to go second. Urban clouted the pill for one base and stole second. Hugh McGinty was an out at first base and bless you while those Belle Vernon chaps were tossing the horsehide, both Bill and Urban scored. In the second something similar happened. Welsh singled and went second on an out. Swaney, with Miller out, drew a walk. Mathers sacrificed to right field, bringing in Welsh. Cratty doubled. Swaney coming in. Urban brought in Cratty with a single. Urban and McGinty scored in the fifth on a single, a stolen base, a base on balls and a double.

The game was called in the seventh inning because of darkness. The score:

MADE HIM GIVE UP THE GAME

Caddy's Unfeeling Remarks Too Much for Tender Feelings of Dear Old Gentleman.

A dear old gentleman, who had only taken up the dear game very late in life, spent some months endeavoring, under the tuition of a professional and the care of a special caddy, to hit the ball. When he succeeded in doing so at all it was never more than a few feet, and every bunker on the course was his daily doom. Still his caddy, having an eye to the main chance, always encouraged him to think that he would soon be more a player and the old man, with the hope that spring eternal even more in his veins, felt that in other people's hands he would be a different person. One day it happened that his special caddy was absent, and a raffish-looking person appeared on the first tee with the old gentleman's clubs. He took his normal 14 shots to the first hole, to the unconcerned but unnoticed disgust of the caddy, but on the second tee the miracle happened, and the old boy for once hit a beauty.

"That was a good one, wasn't it?" he asked, turning to the bearer of clubs.

"Good one?" retorted the ruffian, in tones of the bitterest contempt. "Why, I could play better than that with me left foot!"

This unexpected verdict so upset the poor old man that he walked straight back home, and has never touched a club since.

RANK HIGH IN SCHOLARSHIP

That Athletes Are Poor Students Is Denied by Former Professor in an Eastern College.

"That athletics are practiced in most colleges do not detract the attention of students from scholastic duties is abundantly testified to by college professors," remarked Dr. James Hine, a former professor in one of the eastern colleges. Dr. Brinker, the president of Lehigh university, declared that the Lehigh football squad had averaged higher in scholastic standing than the students who did not participate in college athletics. Lehigh is not the only college in which this fact has been marked. Cornell for several years—and I have no doubt that it continues to show it—had football and baseball teams the members of which led their classes.

Properly controlled athletics are a necessary to successful mental training as are professors. I presume there have been instances where members of college teams have failed in the examinations, and charges follow, as matter of course, that these men are not genuine students. But the facts are so pronounced that the best means of the leading athletic teams in the greatest colleges are men of big mentality that the suggestion that colleges have to hire athletes falls in beginning."

Several women are paper-hangers and whitewashers, and four are found layers—all of them widows. T only one woman coachman. Some women appear under the heading of "clergymen, priests and ministers" and four are coalheavers. Then there are 347 women "carmen" and wagoners, and 231 blacksmiths and "strikers." county One woman occupies herself making patent fuel, and 11,000 three women subways. A few women "tramway car makers." Finally, England and Wales boast of 56 women carpenters for joiners, and 14 women masons. Of latter 13 are widows.

What Interested Her, Sena

Little Myrtle, the daughter of the late Mrs. Cargets of the U. S. Army, was apparently interested in a sermon by Col. J. Brengle, for many years a resident of the late Gen. William B. Woodruff's Army headquarters, Fourteenth street. Her parents approved of this reverent attitude.

"You were greatly impressed by Brengle's speech, were you, my dear?" said her proud father, in a meeting.

"Yes, papa," she answered enthusiastically. "I was wonderfully interested in his sermon. He said that he was talking how far Dr. Cargets had gone in his life."

DR. PARKER'S TWO SERMONS

And How He Got the Morning Congregation Back to His Church at Night.

A characteristic story of Dr. Parker was told by a minister who had it from an old minister who was much interested in Joseph Parker's early work as a local preacher, says the British Weekly. One Saturday he met Parker and asked him whether he had an engagement for Sunday. "Yes," was the reply.

"Are your sermons ready, Joseph?" asked the minister.

"I have the morning sermon," was the reply, "but I am not sure about the evening."

"Well, Joseph, what is your text for the morning and how do you treat it?" Parker went over his text and the outline of his sermon.

"But, Joseph," said the minister, "that is very clever, but it is not the real meaning of the text. If you will look at the commentaries you will see that you are wrong."

Parker thanked him and went his way. On the Monday the minister again met his friend.

"Well, Joseph, how did you get on yesterday?"

"Very well," was the reply.

"How did you manage?"

"Well," he said, "in the morning I preached my sermon and explained the text in my way, and at the close I said: 'This is how I understand it. But learned men understand it differently, and I will tell you in the evening how the learned men understand it.' They all came back in the evening, and Joseph had a happy day."

SHOWS HER TRUE CHARACTER

Floorwalker Has Observed That Woman on Shopping Expedition Reveals Herself as She Is.

Someone has said that you can always judge the caliber of a man by the manner in which he amuses himself. My experience of 15 years as floorwalker in one of the largest department stores in the country has convinced me that you can always judge a woman by the way in which she shops--which, after all, is only another way of saying the manner in which she amuses herself.

I have learned to realize that when the average woman goes on a shopping expedition--when she has taken up the trail of the bargain, determined to track it to its native counter--he brings all her cleverness into play, and in the zest of the chase she is certain to reveal her true self and unconsciously drop the mask she wears on most social occasions.

Always on the alert, always eager to bring down the game, big or little with a timely purchase, these shoppers you will see browsing about the counters in and out of season. You will see them questioning the salesgirls, trying to learn in advance when reductions are to be made. You will see them pick out some article and then come in day after day and watch its price tag. Then when the price is lowered to the point where they think it is a bargain, you will see them pounce on it and carry it home--Woman's World.

Serried the Vicar.

To test the safety of the church steeple a country vicar climbed it with a scaling ladder--a feat requiring no small amount of nerve. He was proud of his achievement and talked rather more about it than was, perhaps, consistent with modesty. He even, at a meeting of his parishioners, described, with a wealth of detail, his feelings while aloft.

"When I reached the top and saw the huge golden weathercock gleaming in the sunlight, what do you think I did?" he asked.

An old farmer, who looked the picture of boredom, hazarded a guess.

"You cheated the weathercock," he said.

"What do you mean, sir?" sharply demanded the vicar.

"Why, you did it out of the job of crowing," the unperturbed old farmer replied.

Elephant's View of Life.

The elephant flapped his ears and sighed so impressively that the yellow dust in the alley way was considerably agitated.

"To think," he confidentially remarked to the toothless tiger, "that my ancestors fought with Hannibal and graced a Roman holiday!"

"What's the answer?" snarled the tiger.

"Dust and desolation," snorted the elephant. "I have in my veins the blood of the white mammoths of Upsala, and yet am forced, forsooth, to pose with a lot of mangy and moth-eaten quadrupeds in a hand-made jungle, in front of a moving-picture coffee mill. Woe, but I'm sorely tempted to throttle myself with my own trunk and so make an end on't!"

PUT BAN ON "MOSQUITOES"

This Story Should Convince Skeptics as to Size and Ferocity of the New Jersey Species.

A struggling young artist in New York who, last summer, fell ill and despondent, decided that if he were to accomplish anything during the coming winter, he must have a vacation in the country. Accordingly, he repaired to a New Jersey resort in the hope of being able to obtain reduced rates.

"Well," said the old chap, who ran the place, "I can't see why I should take you for less money than the others; but I tell you what I'll do. You paint me a nice, fancy picture of the hotel and grounds, and I'll give you a month's board."

The young artist set cheerfully about the task. In a short while he submitted for his host's approval a highly idealized picture of the little house and its grounds. To one of the outbuildings he had added a dove-cote, round which several birds, which the discerning eye might have seen were doves, were hovering.

The landlord didn't think much of this effort. "The picture as a whole," said he, "ain't half bad, but I can't stand for these mosquitoes. You must paint them out, or the bargain's off. They're calculated to scare folks off instead of attraction' them here!"--Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

SPECIAL ROPE FOR CLIMBERS

Those Used in the Alps Are Selected for Strength, Reliability and Lightness.

The rope used by Alpine climbers is of special manufacture, combining as far as possible the different qualities of strength, flexibility and lightness.

Three qualities are in general use being made from sisal, Italian and Manila hems respectively, and occasionally, when cost is not a consideration, of silk. The latter, though very light and strong, is not so durable as the others. That which finds most favor among British mountaineers is known as Buckingham's Alpine rope. It is made of the best Manila hemp.

In the year 1884 a committee of the Alpine club made tests upon a number of ropes suitable for mountaineering. Of the two that were approved one was made of Italian hemp and the other of Manila. They both had a breaking strain of two tons and sustained the weight of a 170-pound man after falling from a height of ten feet.

Non-mountaineers have sometimes considered this insufficient, but it is highly problematical whether the human anatomy could survive the sudden compression of a thin rope arising from any greater fall--Fry's Magazine.

False Teeth an Italian Invention.

No doubt the statement of a firm of manufacturers that they sell over 12,000,000 false teeth a year, is well founded, since everyone uses them these days. It seems, however, to recall to memory the fact that the use of artificial teeth is just a little over a hundred years old.

The first successful maker was Giuseppe Fanti, an Italian dentist who started practice in Paris in 1798 and, thanks to his skillful treatment of Lucien Bonaparte, soon made his way. After years of experiment he discovered the substance from which artificial teeth are still made, and received the gold medal of the French Academy of Science. One of the earliest persons fitted with false teeth was the empress of Russia. After Waterloo Fanti migrated to London, and then to Madrid, where Ferdinand VII. of Spain, rewarded him with a yearly pension of a thousand ducats for a set of false teeth.

Music to Lure Fish.

Two Pennsylvania disciples of Izaak Walton have just invented a musical minnow for bass fishing. The new device is described as a wooden minnow, and instead of the usual spinner in front there is carried out the face of a pretty girl. In front of the face is a miniature electric light, the power for which is furnished by a dry battery carried in the pocket of the fisherman, to throw light on the bait which hangs on the under side.

The minnow is painted red, and within it is a tiny musical box, the playing of which is regulated by the fisherman before he casts his line. The inventors say they adopted the idea because they have found while fishing that bass are attracted by the ringing of a cow bell--Evening Standard.

Widow's Three Tests.

A smart widow at a country house was telling the other day that there were three courses through which every woman should put a man before she married him. These were eating laughing and kissing. "A man's laugh tells a lot," she said. "If it is hearty and merry he is good tempered; if loud and empty it means he lacks feeling. Beware of a greedy man. It will be a case of 'feed the brute' all the time." And, according to her, kissing was the most important test of all.

Took Prizes in Plowing.

A few days after the new farmer had purchased a horse from a thrifty Scot he returned in an angry mood. "You told me this horse had won half a dozen matches against some of the best horses in the country. He can't trot a mile in six minutes to save himself. You lied to me!" he denounced. "I didn't lie. It was in plowin' matches he took six prizes," calmly replied Sandy.

BAMBOO AS PAPER MATERIAL.

Experiments Being Made With the Hope That This Material May Be Found Available.

Inventors are seeking a substitute for the wood pulp in the manufacture of paper. So far various methods have been tried to produce the coarser grades of paper from corn husks, grass, reeds and other forms of vegetable life, but print paper has not yet been successfully produced from anything except wood pulp.

In the far east they are making experiments with bamboo as a possible basis for the making of pulp. Some capitalists of the Orient have gone so far as to establish factories in Siam, Burma and India, but the undertaking has not yet been altogether successful. The great factor against the success of the enterprise in India seems to be the question of satisfactory and cheap transportation.

Pulp so far manufactured has had the fault of being too dark in color to bring a satisfactory price. Bamboos most of the time so far have cost $3.41 gold a ton. Little of the product so far has been sold, but samples submitted in London indicate that the company may receive as high as $38.27 gold a ton. The maximum output of the factory so far has not exceeded half of the original expectation of 18 tons of pulp a day, but it is now expected that with a small addition to the plant a normal output of 12 tons can be maintained and that this rate may be exceeded in time, with comparatively little additional expense.

The critical feature of the entire enterprise seems to be in the matter of bleaching the pulp. Experts claim for bamboo pulp certain advantages among which is the fact that bamboo pulp can be had in parts of the world where other pulp materials are not to be had; it produces a fine pulp which "elts" readily and produces a thick opaque paper of greater thickness than usual for its weight, making it especially suitable for particular varieties of paper; the fine flexible fiber is easily digested by the ordinary bisulphide process and the bamboo can readily be handled mechanically and chemically.

Engineers Laugh at Obstacles.

Like the mining engineer, the building engineer now finds practically no problem in his field which he can not solve, and the question of excavating for foundations for high buildings is little more than a routine matter. Depth is no great hindrance as has been demonstrated in New York. For the greatest office structure in the world, on the site of the Equitable building destroyed by fire, the engineers dug and blasted far below the street and at a depth of eighty feet found a rock bed around the entire site for the more important base of the foundation. It is on this bedrock that the mighty edifice, which will form the true middle of a foundation covering over 49,000 square feet will be built. The cofferdam itself, when complete, will be a solid concrete wall six feet broad and eighty feet deep strengthened or reinforced by heavy steel rods.

Dinner Evidently Was a Success.

The Ladies' Aid of Buffalo gave a big chicken pie dinner at the sale in Shiel's hall last Saturday. There was a large attendance and the whole affair was a success. The ladies know that advertising pays, and they patronized the pages of the Review liberally with their announcements. The women that made the chicken pies were on the job with both feet and their hats on and the fried cake and bean artists produced an article that tasted moreish. There was a big bunch of youngsters present and when they got action on the chicken pie and other "fixens" the food disappeared like water down a badger hole. The final end of the dinner produced the sum of $165.50 in cash. There is no disputing the fact that when the Ladies' Aid of Buffalo squares away to do things they do them--Buffalo (Mont.) Review.

High-Speed Shorthand Machine.

A new shorthand machine, called the stenotype, has made its appearance at a competition in New York. It takes down 592 words a minute and weighs eight pounds. The working of it is based on phonetic spelling. Several letters can be printed by striking one key, while it is possible to strike two keys with one finger. The 23 keys represent seven consonants and every combination of sounds used in speech, together with about 150 standard abbreviations--the sole code that the operator must master. The machine is not being sold to the general public, the sale being restricted to students of business schools qualified as competent operators, in order to keep the device from becoming a drug on the market.

Cynics in Politics.

A New York reformer said at a dinner:

"We have no use for the cynic--no use for the man who, having been asked to define the word 'reformer,' said:

"Reformer? Oh, he's a chap who failed to get an office out of either party."

Eve Not a Suffragist.

"A woman ought to stay at home attending to the dinner," said the man who resents present tendencies.

"No," replied Mr. Meekton, "that's where the human race made its first great mistake. If Eve had been out lecturing instead of passing round the fruit, we'd have been spared an immense amount of trouble."--Exchange.

Value of Talk.

Talk has the reputation of being the cheapest thing there is. As supply and demand have something if not all to do with values, doubtless the supply of talk is what gives it a bargain counter value.

Things that are cheap lack enduring quality.

If talk were confined to the things done more than to the thing said, it would have a greater value.

Some one asked Edison if he experienced much inconvenience on account of his deafness. He replied that he thanked God for it every day, since it protected him from the distracting effect of other people's talk. He could thus live his own life, think his own thoughts, do his own work in his world of silence.
